Scientific supervisor: associate prof. Gerasimenko O.I.

The problem of preserving and restoring the health of adolescent children is of high social importance due to the fact that modern adolescents will in the near future determine the possibility of dynamic progressive development of society. At the same time, the expressed negative changes in their state of health are already leading to serious medical and social consequences. The need for special care for people with disabilities complicates the processes of socio-economic adjustment of families, first of all, because parents are forced to leave work. In this regard, the creation of optimal conditions for the rehabilitation of children with disabilities, their successful education, training, social and labor adaptation and integration into society is among the most important tasks of any society. In this abstract we discuss main features of support of disabled children with pathology of organs of sense in United Arab Emirates (UAE).

In UAE children with special needs are having a very good chance to live easily, due to its good economic situation. There the concept of private schools is spreading rather than government schools, because private schools provide all the amenities and quality education, and not only education, they also provide security and safety in terms of mental health and physical.

One of the best schools in the United Arab Emirates is Future Centre for Special Needs. They are saying that music and art have always resonated deeply with people, regardless of ability. The creative forms can often move, inspire and teach in a way words alone cannot. Sometimes, due to limitations in verbal communication, they use art to express their feelings and their emotions. And it's sort of a relaxation time for them.

As creative invention of this school we must mention such innovation as "Hertz Design". They created a piano with Braille letters for the visually Impaired.

Thy also invented a small stage where the deaf can feel the vibration of a guitar`s strings.

Conclusion: Children with special needs will have a suitable environment and a suitable educational place that meets their needs, where proper nutrition, productive education and good health. Under these circumstances a child will grow up in a healthy physical and mental state and ready to challenge life. Children who are suffering from blindness, hear loss and other such disorders deserve to have a good live that ensures them happiness and good education. They deserve a major rule society and don't compare them with other, because they are special so we need to deal with them in special way.
